Westlake products touch lives every day, and that is why we consider environmental responsibility, product durability and safety, and community relations in our day-to-day decisions. This mindset is the driving force across our operations and in product development.

We operate with an understanding that every piece matters — from the materials and finished products that we manufacture to the ideas and collaboration with our customers and employees — for us in our sustainability journey.

Great ideas and innovations start with listening. Some of our most inspired successes and pride with product launches and operational improvements were borne from listening to our employees and our customers.

In 2023, we celebrated several sustainability advancements in our offerings, operations, and outreach, including additional products with sustainable attributes (such as recycled content), procurement and production of renewable energy, as well as continued efforts in extensive community engagement. You will find these facts and stories in this Report, along with our governance structure and our disclosures, which are informed by globally recognized sustainability frameworks.
